F1® FAST FACTS

Become a F1® expert with these 10 fun facts!

8

A F1® car is made up of 80,000 components. 100% precision is absolutely necessary – even if they were assembled 99.9% correctly, that would still mean that 80 things were done wrongly.

1.923s

Gone in 1.923 seconds! Red Bull is the first F1® team to achieve a pit stop in under two seconds.

x 900,000

V6 power units used in F1® are limited to 15,000 revolutions per minute... but that's still 900,000 times the speed of the Singapore Flyer!

A driver's neck has to withstand 24kg of weight under hard acceleration. That's close to the maximum weight of each piece of checked-baggage on most airlines

300 km/h

The tremendous downforce generated by F1® cars allows them to turn corners at a blazing 320km/h, almost double the speed that a normal sports car can handle.

- 4kg

F1® drivers lose up to 4kg of their body weight in sweat every two hours of racing. That's more than 2 big bottles of isotonic sports drinks!

160 bhp

Brake to speed up?! The Motor Generator Unit-Kinetic (MGU-K) in each F1® car can convert the energy generated from braking to produce up to 160 brake horsepower for about 33 seconds per lap.

369 km/h

The highest recorded speed of a F1® car during a race is 369 km/h (229 mph). That's faster than the average take-off speed of a jumbo jet!

160,000 km

Each team competing in the FIA F1® World Championship now travels something like 160,000 kilometres (100,000 miles) a year between races and test sessions.

61 laps

Why does the Singapore Grand Prix have 61 laps? The circuit length, when multiplied by the number of laps, meets the minimum distance of 305km required for F1® races (61 x 5.065km = 308.828km).

RAFFLES PLACE & MARINA BAY

The heart of Singapore's financial district, the Raffles Place and Marina Bay area is home to Singapore's glitziest, most upmarket lifestyle offerings. The iconic landmark of the precinct is Marina Bay Sands, featuring luxury shopping, celebrity chef dining, world-class theatre and opulent nightlife, while the Raffles Place area is home to boutique shops and bars offering glamorous experiences.

SINGAPORE RIVER

The Singapore River was once the lifeblood of colonial commercial trade. Today, its riverbanks are still abuzz, but the bustle of entrepot trade has been replaced with an array of historic buildings, restaurants and after-dark entertainment. The contrasting sight of restored colonial landmarks like The Fullerton Hotel Singapore against towering modern skyscrapers makes this neighbourhood a particularly striking one to explore.

AROUND THE WORLD GRUB, AROUND THE TRACK

The sleek race cars are not the only ones that need fueling at the 2015 FORMULA ONE SINGAPORE AIRLINES SINGAPORE GRAND PRIX. While eyes are glued to the track, rev up your appetite with an international spread of souped-up food and beverage options located both within and outside the Circuit Park.

TAKE YOUR PICK

With a veritable smorgasbord of food outlets to head to inside the circuit, you can expect everything from local delights at the Makansutra Gluttons Bay in Zone 3 and Dockside Hawkers in Zone 4, to South Asian favourites, scrumptious American burgers, and flavourful European dishes at the various food stalls throughout the circuit park.

CHUG AND CHILL

Singapore's most famous pubs will bring their taps and bartenders to the Park, so you can quench your thirst with beers, cocktails as well as other non-alcoholic beverages. Enjoy your meals and drinks at the tables. Better yet, bring along a mat and have a picnic under the stars while catching the performances.

You can also seek out popular restaurants from Singapore's number one food portal at HungryGoWhere.com.

FEAST OUT

Restaurants beyond and around the gates of the Marina Bay Street Circuit will also be geared up and going full-throttle with their specially created race-themed menus. So take advantage of these treats that they'll be dishing out:

Oscar's at Conrad Centennial Singapore (Gate 2)

Groups of three pay for two when you dine on the lavish international dinner buffet at this 24-hour restaurant, between 5pm and 8pm.

Wine Universe Restaurant (Gate 2)

Race-themed burgers and sandwiches aside, the big draw here are the deals on wines and spirits: $50 for house wines (usual price $65), $140 for Johnnie Walker Black (usual price $210) and lots more.

Nikunohi (Gate 2)

Race ticket holders enjoy not one but two deals: 1-for-1 Sapporo beer, as well as 10% off all Premium Steak/Kiwami Ultimate Beef Yakiniku/Premium Rare Parts.

Bottura (Gate 2)

Tuck into a Special Night Race Set Menu ($60++/person) complete with an appetiser, a tagliatelle main course, dessert and a glass of wine of your choice.

Highlander CHIJMES (Gate 3)

Speed demons, bring your race ticket to this Scottish-themed restaurant and bar, with a live music band, to enjoy 10% off all beverages.

Wooloomooloo Steakhouse (Gate 3)

One of the city's best steakhouses also offers great views of the tracks, along with deals on a la carte food (minimum spend between $200-$300 per person), five-hour free-flow drinks and canape sets, and extended hours.

Zafferano (Gate 6)

The posh Italian restaurant offers fantastic views along with luxe dinner menus for all three days of the race.

AquaMarine (Gate 8)

From 14 to 21 Sep, there's a sweet 1-for-1 deal on the daily lunch buffet of 80 dishes.

LeVeL33 (Gate 10)

The fantastic view would be worth the $33++ cover charge (0.3L signature craft beer or a glass of wine included). Or get together a group of six and book a terrace table for $333++, with beers, wines and nibbles.
