Muslim-friendly Singapore

Muslims comprise over 15% percent of Singapore’s population and it is no surprise that this island state offers a large variety of Muslim-friendly gastronomic experiences. Many of these have been Halal certified by MUIS, also known as the Islamic Religious Council of Singapore (Majlis Ugama Islam Singapura). Visitors can also consider Muslim-owned food establishments throughout the city. Furthermore, mosques and musollahs around the island allow you to fulfill your religious obligations while you are on vacation.

As a Muslim traveller, this guide provides you with the information you need to enjoy your stay in Singapore -- a city where your passions in life are made possible. You may also download the MuslimSG app and follow @halalSG on Twitter for any Halal related queries while in Singapore.

Singapore offers plenty of stunning mosques and convenient musollahs (designated prayer rooms in public spaces) should you need a break from sightseeing to perform your daily prayers. All mosques provide a dedicated female prayer and ablution area with privacy as well as female prayer garments.

Halal Food at Hawker Centres
Hawker centres are a familiar sight in the city, recognisable by numerous stalls lined up next to each other. Also affectionately referred to by locals as kopitiams, these are food complexes offering various types of cuisines. You will be able to find Halal stalls by looking out for the MUIS Halal certified logo. Although they share a common eating space, you can be assured that the Halal stalls are identified by different coloured cutleries and have a separate wash and tray return area.

Variety of Halal Food in Singapore
Singapore is home to a wide variety of Halal cuisines, from Japanese, Chinese, Korean to Middle Eastern, Western and more. Most fast food chains in Singapore are Halal certified by MUIS. For a quick fix, head over to some of them such as McDonald’s, Burger King, KFC, Long John Silver’s, Popeyes and Texas Chicken.

The metropolis has an abundance of Halal restaurants that have been made easily identifiable in this guide by two different Halal logos.

Did You Know?
Singapore is ranked as the top Muslim-friendly destination among non-OIC (Organization of Islamic Cooperation) countries for six consecutive years, according to the Mastercard-CrescentRating Global Muslim Travel Index.

Ramadan Bazaar
Each year, regardless of race or religion, Singaporeans will flock to the Geylang Serai Ramadan Bazaar for their annual dosage of trendy food, traditional apparel and kuih (traditional Malay sweets) during Ramadan. That is when the bazaar becomes a food and shopping haven. Experience the Ramadan Bazaar in its full glory from when the sun sets till late. You will definitely not want to miss this annual event!

Iftar with the Locals
Most mosques or masjids (masajid) as they are called here, provide iftar meals throughout Ramadan. The iftar meals may vary from a dulang style where four to five people share a meal from one large tray or bento style where each individual receives a set meal. A common practice among mosques is porridge distribution, which occurs at various times depending on the mosque. Ramadan is the month of giving and improving our deeds; a perfect opportunity to foster closer ties with the local community!

Muslim-friendly Destination
Singapore has a vibrant and diverse multi-cultural community with accessible Muslim-friendly facilities such as Halal food and prayer spaces in popular areas. This guide helps you to identify the different Halal certified and Muslim-owned establishments around the city.

Useful tips for navigating Muslim-friendly Singapore

Prayer Facilities
Singapore offers plenty of stunning mosques and convenient musollahs (designated prayer rooms in public spaces) should you need a break from sightseeing to perform your daily prayers. All mosques provide a dedicated female prayer and ablution area with privacy as well as female prayer garments.

Finding Nearby Prayer Spaces
The places featured in this travel guide are marked with these icons to indicate the nearest prayer space for your convenience.

Halal Certified Establishments
Eating establishments bearing this logo indicate that they have been Halal certified by Majlis Ugama Islam Singapura (MUIS), also known as the Islamic Religious Council of Singapore. MUIS is the Islamic authority in-charge of Muslim affairs in Singapore. It provides Halal Certification services and regulates the Singapore Halal industry.

Halal Establishments
Restaurants accompanied with this Halal logo indicate that, while they may not have been Halal certified by MUIS, they are still Halal and are safe to dine in. In this case, the restaurant is either Muslim-owned or uses 100% Halal ingredients and is frequently patronised by local Muslims.

Gain insights into Malay traditions as you learn about the history of the old Royal Palaces, the Sultan Mosque and the Tombs of Malayian Princes – a burial ground hidden inside a cemetery.

- Sultans of Spice 3 min
- Unity in Diversity 3 min

For wife and husband duo, Rozza Ramli and Jai Wahab, KARVA was born out of their shared interests in grooming.

’I was not an ambitious person. I wanted to have five kids and imagined myself as a housewife,’ said Rozza. After her fourth child, she wondered about what she would do in her free time as her children started to grow up. When Rozza was a flight stewardess, she would check herself into salons during her layovers. She then realised that there was no salon on par with Toni & Guy in Singapore for Muslim ladies. Hence, came the inspiration behind KARVA.

42-year-old Marlinah Bte Ahmad, or Lina, has been an entrepreneur for most of her adult life. In fact, she comes from a family of business owners.

‘But I did not want to open something without heart or purpose,’ said Lina. Lina’s Cafe is derived from her own experiences as a mother. ‘My 14-year-old daughter, Sara, is on the spectrum. When we go out, I find it hard to bring her to restaurants or cafes because she will have her tantrums and meltdowns. We would get stared at and receive verbal abuse. I thought, if it happens to me, it will surely happen to other families with ASD (autism spectrum disorder) kids.’

Hjh Maimunah

Established in the 90s, Hjh Maimunah has become a familiar name among locals for its variety of mouth-watering nasi padang (steamed rice with pre-cooked dishes). The restaurant’s signature dishes include Sudanese grilled chicken and lemak siput (shellfish cooked in a spicy coconut gravy).

The Ramen Stall

This Halal Japanese restaurant offers ramen and a wide range of sushi, sashimi and desserts. Their chicken-based broth is simmered to perfection for hours to achieve a milky texture with no artificial flavouring, MSG, salt or sugar added. A favourite to start off with is the Volcano Ramen with chilli on the side.

Fika Swedish Cafe and Bistro

Should you need a short break from the hustle and bustle of a typical Kampong Gelam evening, take a short walk towards the intersection of Beach Road and Arab Street, where this quaint Halal Swedish bistro sits. Here, you can feast on scrumptious Swedish staples and pastries amidst a classical European interior. Grab a seat on the second floor where couches, statement rugs and a surprisingly well-stocked bookshelf makes you feel like you are visiting a friend’s home rather than a restaurant.

Chinatown is a true reflection of Singapore as a multi-cultural community. The area is dotted with mosques, Chinese and Hindu temples located beside each other.

In the early 19th century, water drawn from wells near Ann Siang Hill was transported in bullock carts named Kreta Ayer, which translates to “water cart” in Malay. Today, conserved shophouses and eclectic murals adorn the streets of Chinatown which are great photo-taking spots.

The Buddha Tooth Relic Temple was inspired by the Tang Dynasty in China. Step in and view the intricate designs decked in traditional red lacquer paint. The temple gets its name from what the Buddhists regard as the left canine tooth of Buddha, which has been recovered from his funeral pyre in Kushinagar, India.

Built in 1827, the Sri Mariamman Temple is known to be the oldest Hindu temple in Singapore. The temple was built as a dedication to Goddess Mariamman, known for her power to cure illnesses and diseases. Prayers are conducted regularly so step inside and witness the rituals firsthand.
